

It is not fair to have our privacy invaded by telemarketers. They have their index of numbers regardless of whether we want unsolicited calls. It is time that the consumer should come first and not big business. It is time that the FCC looks out for US. Why is it that we live in a supposedly free country and have to be subjected to the whims of people who just want to exploit us for only their own personal gains? Why would you even consider this action? If the FCC succumbs to these pressures and demands, it can only mean that something has gone on behind closed doors and we, the consumers, do not live in a free society.
